Dominion Hill offers Father's Day barbeque for Charitable Cause

Digdeguash, NB, June 5, 2018: Dominion Hill Country Inn is holding a family barbeque to celebrate Father's Day. All are welcome and there is no charge. Donations are requested to assist the important work of the Canadian Mental Health Association in New Brunswick. The event will be held at the estate's Manor House on Sunday, June 17 between 12 and 3 pm.

"We want to honour fathers and their families with a fun barbeque," stated Michael Campbell, who purchased Dominion Hill last year. "The opportunity to provide financial assistance to the Canadian Mental Health Association in support of their services in our community is equally important. We are very grateful for the work they do addressing addiction, depression, suicide, mental illness, and many other critical concerns."

The barbeque will include hamburgers, hotdogs, baked goods and refreshments. In partnership with Kent Building Supplies of St. Stephen, dads will have the opportunity to win some great prizes.

Dominion Hill is located off exit 39 on Route #1 (the junction of #127), on the shore of the Digdeguash tidal basin, a short drive from St. George, St. Andrews and St. Stephen.

Dominion Hill is an historic estate that was recently renovated as a country inn, meeting place, and wedding venue. Built by the publishing family that created The Saturday Evening Post and Ladies' Home Journal, there are a small number of suites, rooms and cottages. The amenities include a wellness centre, yoga studio, hot tub, hiking trails, meeting space, and a barn for larger events and weddings. The century-old manor house has a dining room, lounge, library and outdoor patio.
